

Regions and countries with dedicated studies on the economic costs of biological invasions. Each region studied is in a light color, and the darker hue represents the countries with an additional, national study. For example, North America is studied and is in light gold, with USA and Mexico also studied, and indicated in darker gold. Full article references are available on www.invacost.fr